

WELCOME TO

GREAT OXENDON

Rural Northamptonshire

An Introduction to our Village

Much of the village dates from around 1800. However, there are a number of older buildings and Great Oxendon is even mentioned in the Domesday Book.

The village was the starting point for the Royalist forces in their final battle of the English Civil war at Naseby just down the road and there is an interesting trail. There are many lovely walks around the area.

The Oxendon Tunnels are disused railway tunnels. The Northampton to Market Harborough line, designed by George Stephenson, opened in 1859 and had tunnels at Oxendon and nearby at Kelmarsch.

The former 'up' line tunnel at Oxendon is open as part of the Brampton Valley Way, a linear park which runs from Boughton level crossing on the outskirts of Northampton to Little Bowden near Market Harborough, on the former railway track. It is now part of the National Cycle Network and is well used by both cyclists and walkers.

On your Doorstep

The village is situated amidst beautiful rolling countryside with stunning views. Two miles north is the attractive town of Market Harborough with an excellent selection of supermarkets and shops, there are also a number of hotels, restaurants and pubs to suit everyone's taste and budget. Culturally, there is a thriving theatre presenting plays by its own and visiting companies, it also acts as a cinema and screens theatre, opera and ballet broadcasts. The Symington Building houses a museum and a library. For the more active there is the local leisure centre with pools, gym and exercise classes, there is also a tennis club situated at Great Bowden which has use of indoor courts at the leisure centre during the winter months. Other sporting opportunities include bowls, golf, rugby, football, cricket, squash, hockey, running and athletics clubs. Within easy distance there are numerous villages and beauty spots with the opportunity for walking and cycling including Foxton Locks and Pitsford Reservoir. You may even pay a visit to a local gin distillery at Harrington. For convenience, there are several local enterprises in the village and details of these can be found on pages 6 & 7.

Kelmarsh Hall is on our doorstep and worth a visit to view the house and gardens and enjoy the many events that are held there throughout the year.

Village Life

There are numerous community events held in the village, organised by the Parochial Church Council (PCC), The Village Hall Committee, GO Social and the Youth Club. We have a village fete/garden party every summer, an autumn harvest supper, Christmas Teas on the Sundays in December and many other fun ideas for fund raising which have been very popular and well supported. Upcoming events are usually published in the parish magazine which is distributed monthly. If you would like something including please contact the newsletter secretary for Great Oxendon, Janet Hogarth, at havencott@gmail.com or 01858 432238. We welcome volunteers at all these activities so come along and join in, it is a great way of getting to know your neighbours!

The village hall is available to hire at a very reasonable fee for your parties and personal social events, please contact Janet Hogarth, as above. Behind the village hall are some basketball nets and there is a childrens' playground and a playing field on the Braybrooke Road

Stay Informed - If you would like to be kept up to date with all that is happening in Great Oxendon please email a request to greatoxendonvillage@gmail.com and you will be added to the distribution list.

Events are also posted on the Great Oxendon Facebook page

St Helen's Church

The Church dates from 13th and 14th Century and stands on the outskirts of the village. The Church is part of the Faxton Group of Churches, which consists of seven churches in villages in the area.

St Helen's has one or two services a month attended by those living in the village and others from local villages. There are additional special services during the year. The Priest in charge is Reverend James Watson and he resides in the Rectory in Great Oxendon. James' contact details together with Services are listed on the reverse of the Parish Magazine. They can also be found on the Faxton Group website at www.faxtongroup.org.uk

The Church is an important part of the village and many people in the village are involved in the care and maintenance of the Church and its churchyard.
